

Our application is meant to sell phone numbers. Users can buy phone numbers from the list of available ones or rent a phone number for a determined period of time directly from the provider or another user. Users can list their phone numbers for a sale or rent directly on the market. Users also can take part in the auction: they can bid on phone numbers and win one when the auction timer is over if the bid is the highest one. Users can auction their phone numbers and get money from it.

Users can check who owns a phone number. When checking on the phone number, the user sees an account address or nickname mapped to the number.

It is also possible to buy a nickname so that it is displayed instead of the account address when someone checks the user's phone number.

Users can see the details of their account: information about their transactions, their phone numbers, their current balance. They can withdraw money from the application to their ethereum account.
